
HIGH RISE COMPLEX—The Daly City city council is today studying plans for a proposed multi-million dollar highrise office complex to be constructed east of Junipero Serra Freeway near Hickey Boulevard. Developers of the complex, where some 10,000 persons will someday work, is Duffel Financial and Construction Company of Concord. Initial building will be a 13-story 235,150 square foot building with parking for 850 cars—built on a multi-level plaza. It will be the tallest structure to date in the north county.

Multimillion-Dollar DC High-Rise Office Complex Is Planned

Construction of a multi-million-dollar high rise office complex which will eventually support a working population of more than 10,000 persons may soon get under way in Daly City.

The City Council has begun studies of a request to change the present zoning from R-3 (apartments) to Planned Development (PD) on some 13 acres of property east of the Junipero Serra Freeway near Hickey Boulevard.

An East Bay organization, Duffel Financial and Construction Company of Concord, has submitted information and sketch plans of the complex.

Attorney Paul Hupf of Daly City, and Dave Schuh, representing the developers, explained at an earlier planning commission meeting that phase one of the project will be construction of a 13 story tower atop a raised plaza area.

This building will contain more than 235,000 square feet of gross floor area, supported by an 850 space parking area.

As office space expands the "outdoor" parking lot will be replaced by a multi-level garage, it was explained.

Designed by Maxwell Starkman AIA & Associates, of Beverly Hills, the complex will include closed-circuit television systems for security, modern fire protection systems and high speed elevators, according to plans.

The proposed complex will ultimately contain almost 1.5 million square feet of space occupied by restaurants, offices, financial institutions and shops.

There will be some 5,000 parking spaces available.

Initial reaction to the planned office complex was one of excitement by the council.

Most members of the city staff and council said they were closely following the matter. It was apparent most felt the complex would be a welcome addition to Daly City.

The Planning Commission, after holding two public meetings on the matter, recommended the council approve the zone change on two parcels (from R-3 to C-2) within the proposed development to be used as service station areas.

The Planning Commission asked the council not to approve the zone change ordinance until both offices had considered in public hearings the matter of a Planned Development for the entire complex.

There has been considerable objection to construction of service stations in the Serramonte area by homeowners.

It was evident by the Commission's action that it did not intend to approve two service stations within the complex without studying the overall development.

The council agreed with the commission's findings.

Duncan's Appointment to Colma Council Questioned

But City Attorney Says 'Election' Is Key to Eligiblity

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Colma Town Councilman Glen Edwin Duncan has been repeatedly accused in recent weeks of accepting an appointment to the city council last August although he was not eligible under existing government law.

The law (Ch. 1, General, 36502) states that a person "is not eligible to hold office as councilman . . . unless he is at the time of assuming office an elector of the city and has resided in the city for the year preceding his election."

City Attorney Robert H. Cornell argued Wednesday that the section raised by critics of Duncan did not pertain because Duncan was appointed and not elected to his office.

In a four page opinion, Cornell traced Duncan's career with the U.S. Navy, his discharge last year and subsequent residence in Colma.

Cornell said there had never been a test of the courts in such a case as Duncan's appointment.

Facts gathered by The Times disclosed that Duncan, now living with his wife and child at 467 E Street, Colma, still used the address of his mother-in-law at 455 Bowdoin Street, San Francisco as late as January 22, 1971—almost six months after he assumed a seat on the council.

On that date Duncan registered a car he had bought in San Francisco at the Bowdoin Street address.

Duncan's wife, Jacquelyn Rosemary, is the niece of Colma Mayor Raymond D. Ottoboni Sr.

Duncan was unanimously appointed to the city council on a motion made by Councilwoman Rena Vallerga on August 12, 1970. He was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Edwin M. Kreinberg. The term expires in April, 1972.

Asked if she had questioned Duncan's residency at the time of the appointment motion, Mrs. Vallerga said she had not.

"Mr. Ottoboni brought Mr. Duncan by my office and said he had rented a home from him for the past three years. I had no reason to doubt this," Mrs. Vallerga said.

Both Mayor Ottoboni and Councilman Duncan vehemently denied Mrs. Vallerga's statement, although the councilwoman stood fast by her story.

In February, 1970, the State Department of Motor Vehicles

D.C. Officials Want No Part In Bruno Mtn. Development

Daly City wants no part in development of San Bruno Mountain and officials of that city last week told this to both the property owner — Foremost-McKesson — and the Local Agency Formation Commission.

What was considered a 3,000 acre plum only three years ago has soured and officials of Daly City now fear the mountain may turn out to be a financial lemon.

Mayor Bernard Lycett said that if the mountain was brought into his city development of off-site service facilities, such as expansion of present sewage plants, would run into the millions of dollars.

He did not feel the city's taxapayers were prepared to shoulder any further tax burden resulting from this development.

Although the latest proposed development plan calls for 1,400 dwelling units, which would eventually house a population in excess of 20,000, Mayor Lycett charged the developers have been vague in presenting exact figures.

Foremost-McKesson representatives have declined to meet and discuss with Daly City public improvements and service responsibilities attached to this massive development, Lycett said.

Lycett and other city officials felt Daly City was not ready to assume the role of San Mateo County's largest city if it meant being crushed by additional taxes to support the mountain.

With annexation of San Bruno Mountain, Daly City would be dome the largest city in the county.

In 1969 Daly City asked LAFCO to put the mountain in its sphere of influence.

At that time the city felt development of the landmark property would mean a boom for the city.

Meantime, the property was acquired by Foremost-McKesson Property Company from Crocker Land Comapny.

Early in 1971 a plan for development of the mountain entitled "San Bruno Mountain" was published and distributed around the Peninsula area.

It proposed office and commercial space, parks and open space and housing for a proposed population of some 20,000.

Last month the company held a series of promotional type meetings in the North County and presented a new brochure on the subject entitled "Visitacion Rancho — A Proposal for Parks and Open Space."

This plan called for some 1,480 acres of parks and open space.

In all general plan material made available to the public and city officials no mention has been made of the Crocker Industrial Park adjacent to the city of Brisbane on the bay side of the mountain.

Without this industrial park as

Guards at Park in S. Bruno?

Hiring a guard service for San Bruno's heavily used, bomb-plagued City Park is under study by Acting City Mgr. Leo Van Dusen and City Atty. Joe Galligan.

Councilmen asked for the study after hearing a proposal by John M. Burke, representing a private nation-wide guard service, Guardsmark Inc. He was presented at Monday night's study meeting of the San Bruno City Council by Polly Sandkulla, vice-chairman of the San Bruno Recreation Commission. She cited the firm's proposal as "tailor-made for our needs."

The problem, as previously outlined by Mrs. Sandkulla, is that there is no one present on weekends to enforce park rules (no dogs allowed, no tree climbing, no bicycles on pathways), to mediate disputes over picnic reservations, or to prevent vandalism.

Burke offered to supply the service at $3 an hour, and said that his men will do all those things, firmly but courteously. His men, he added, do not carry the ordinary image of private guards. They are all specially trained, uniformed, ranging in age from 25 to 55. Most are retired from the armed services.

Acting City Mgr. Leo Van Dusen reported that vandalism at the park is costing the city dearly.

"Our most recent bombing," Van Dusen reported, "blew up a toilet so that we couldn't even find any white pieces."

A concrete bird bath which is the centerpiece of the city's rose garden has been bombed and replaced three times he added.

"I have a built-in resistance

Gunmen Use Hostage to Elude D.C. Police

Two holdup men used a terror-stricken store owner as a shield on Friday to force their way through police lines to a waiting car parked outside a Daly City radio shop.

The hostage was later released unharmed near San Francisco State College—about a mile from the scene of the daring escape.

A crowd of several hundred onlookers and some two dozen lawmen including support units from the California Highway Patrol and Sheriff's Office, watched helplessly as the holdup men marched Alan M. Mayeda out of the store about 8:20 p.m.

Police Capt. John Walsh ordered his men not to attempt to stop the fleeing men fearing they would kill their hostage.

He made the decision after conferring with the holdup men inside the Stereo Shop at 1805 Junipero Serra Boulevard on two occasions as police covered front and rear doors of the building with rifles and shotguns.

The drama started shortly after 7 p.m. when the suspects walked into the radio store pretending to be shoppers.

Whipping out guns the pair subdued co-owner Mayeda and rifled the cash register. They were in the process of tying up their victim when a passerby saw what was going on and called Daly City police.

Nine officers from Daly City arrived within minutes and blocked off exits to the building.

Other support units began arriving shortly after.

Captain Walsh ordered the suspects to release the hostage and then surrender themselves. The armed men refused and instead threatened to kill Mayeda if police approached the store.

Captain Walsh agreed to meet with the pair after they insisted that their car be parked outside and that police allow them to drive away.

The veteran policeman was forced to talk to the men with his back to them. He agreed to let them through the police cordon.

As the trio began leaving the building, something apparently frightened them and they ducked back inside.

Walsh again approached the building and again talked to the men.

This time the men hurried out of the store and into the escape car.

Several police were seen raising their hands in an apparent

Decrease of 12 Cents in S. Bruno Tax

San Bruno city councilmen agreed on a decrease in the city tax-rate of 12 cents per $100 of assessed valuation during a budget study session Monday.

A budget totaling $4,807,918 would result in a tax-rate of $1.2327, compared to $1.3520 for the 1970 fiscal year which ended June 30.

"This does not mean that taxes will go down!" exclaimed Mrs. Ruth Harris, Bennington Drive resident who has organized the new "People's Revolt Against Taxation" group.

Mayor Maury Hamilton admitted that those whose properties were reassessed at higher values will still experience some increase in actual taxes—although those whose properties had not been reassessed this year will receive a considerable tax reduction. (The latter appear to include largely owners of apartment-zoned properties which have had sizable increases in assessed valuation in previous years.)

"I calculated it would still cost me $9 more in city taxes this year," Hamilton said. Councilman George Croey conculated a $40 increase for his property.

Hamilton said that this year a little more than 10 per cent of the city budget is funded by the property tax. In previous years, it has run as high as 20 per cent. Supporting the budget to a large extent this year will be the change in the city sales tax split. In past years, 60 per cent has been going to the general

Relocation Committee to Meet

The Relocation Advisory Assistance Committee will hold its scheduled meeting at Grace Chapel, 100 Los Banos Avenue, starting at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Only 12 homes and three commercial offices remain to be purchased by the city in the so-called Knowles Avenue improvement corridor.

Initially there were 55 homes.

City Attorney Albert Polonsky, a member of the committee's advisory staff, said things were progressing "smoothly."

He suggested the committee hold only special meetings rather than as often as they do now.

It was noted most people moving out of the area—both rentors and owners—are purchasing homes.

JESD Plans Study Sessions

Study sessions will be held twice monthly by Jefferson Elementary School District trustees.

The JESD board, it its organizational meeting recently, set the first and third Tuesdays as specific study session dates.

The meetings will start at 8 p.m., as will regular meetings of the board on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month.

Mrs. Dorothy Adams, who sought the study sessions, said they would allow the board an opportunity to hear from community groups, as well as the district's administration and consultants on most topics coming to trustees.

VALLEMAR TREES — These trees, which create an informal aboretum in the Vallemar section of Pacifica, were planted by George O. Rich, one of the area's early settlers. Rich was honored recently by the International Shade Trees Association for having collected shade trees from all over the world and having them shipped to him in Vallemar, where he planted them along Calara Creek.

Priority Is Given to Westborough Blvd.

South San Francisco councilmen on Monday agreed that extension of Westborough Boulevard (actually Chestnut Avenue) should have priority over extension of Hickey to Hillside Boulevard in that city.

Councilman Warren Steinkamp was adamant that it was senseless for the county to extend Hickey Boulevard when they have a ready-made extension on Chestnut.

Both Councilmen Frank Bertucelli and Patrick Ahern initially held out for extension of Hickey.

Ahern said he sees Hickey Boulevard as a means to route vehicles around the city. "We shouldn't discourage any road the county wants to pay for," he said. Bertucelli agreed.

Councilman Frank Mammini said that if the county wants to extend Hickey it will do so anyway. He said he agreed with Steinkamp that the city should ask the county to use whatever money it was going to use on Hickey, on Chestnut improvement instead. This, he said, would give at least one thoroughfare through the city.

"If they (the county) spend their money on Hickey, we'll never get Chestnut developed," he said.

Finally, Mayor Bill Borba, with unanimous agreement of the council, instructed City Manager Gale Dreisbach to set up a meeting with the County Board of Supervisors, and state highway people (for possible connection with Highway 101) on the matter.

"County efforts to push through Hickey Boulevard are completely out of order in view of the condition of Chestnut," said Steinkamp.

He also referred to the fact that extending Hickey would mean crossing Colma Creek and uprooting mobile homes at Treasure Island Trailer Court. "Let's finish one (road) we've started," he said.

Hickey extension was estimated at $920,000 from Mission Road to Hillside.

mailed a new driver's license to Duncan at the Bowdoin Street address.

It is against the law to forward this license and it so states on the outside of the envelope. The license was not returned.

The 31-year-old Duncan said that although he had not physically lived in Colma for the required one year (he moved to his present address in early August, 1970) it was always his "intention" to live in Colma upon his return from a tour of duty with the U.S. Navy, Iwakuni Air Station, Japan.

His wife preceded him back to the U.S. from Japan by several weeks. Both hoped she would be able to find a home in Colma, Duncan said.

Mrs. Duncan moved in with her uncle, Mayor Ottoboni, at 435 E Street, Colma. Later, she moved to the couple's present address—also owned by Mayor Ottoboni.

Duncan said that after his return he moved in with his mother-in-law at the San Francisco address for a few weeks.

Her version of how the appointment came about differs from Mrs. Vallerga's.

Duncan said Mrs. Vallerga "knew me for some time. She recommended my appointment after learning I was the mayor of a military housing development" at Iwakuni, Japan.

Much of his mail is still received from several addresses including Colma, San Francisco and Japan, according to Duncan.

On his return, Duncan "looked around for a job and decided to try the San Francisco police department."

He took the test for policeman in May, 1970. His address on the application at that time was 455 Bowdoin Street, San Francisco.

Kreinberg died in July, 1970.

Duncan registered to vote in San Mateo County two weeks later.

Application number L-27431, filed with the Colma City Clerk, Blanche Lagomarsino, lists Duncan as a Republican and was sworn to on August 7, 1970.

In an interview with this newspaper, Duncan said this was the first time he had ever registered to vote.

At a public meeting several hours later on the same day, the councilman informed the audience he had first registered to vote while still in the military, on an absentee ballot.

August 8, 1970, the electricity in Duncan's home was turned on. Three days later PG&E turned on the gas.

Throughout conversations with Duncan on the matter of his residency, he maintained "intent" to live in Colma even while living abroad.

Attorney Cornell points out in his opinion that the word "election" is the key to Duncan's eligibility.

"He was appointed and not elected," Cornell said.

Further, Cornell declares that the question of Duncan's appointment at this late date is "a moot point."

The attorney said, "All Mr. Duncan would have to do is get up and walk around the table and be appointed again," to settle the issue.

to putting in an uniformed guard when we have our own police department." Councilman George Corey objected. "Before we talk to them any more, the police department should talk to them."

Councilman Tony Governale, who had formerly headed the Recreation Commission, said that the guard service was an outgrowth of a study made by the commission. Of the various ideas, such as a park ranger and park superintendent, the commission felt that this was the best idea. A recreation worker, he says, gets paid $2.50 an hour, and would not be as effective, he felt, as a uniformed guard.

"You can't have a police officer spending his time keeping dogs out of the park," Mrs. Sandkulla spoke up, "when there is a burglary on First Avenue . . . A police officer won't work out."

She added that people using the park just will not report anything going on. She told how she heard a sound like axes being wielded, in the men's room, and asked several baseball managers to go in and check. They refused, saying "I'm not going to get involved."

Mrs. Sandkulla submitted figures showing four possible guard schedules, showing the cost to range from $7728 per year for a full year-round daily guard schedule, to $2568 per year for a mere summer schedule. A year-round weekend schedule would cost $2736 a year.

DEATH CAR —San Franciscan Tracy O. Parkhill, 21, was dead on arrival at Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City Sunday night after this car he was driving overturned on Highway 1, just north of Paloma Avenue in Pacifica. Parkhill was found in the car, which had been heading north, gone out of control, crossed the center divider and come to rest in the southbound lanes. The victim's father, Leonard, is a South San Francisco resident.

fund with 40 per cent to financing of capital improvements; this year, 90 per cent is going to the general fund.

In addition, Acting City Manager Leo Van Dusen announced that the total sales tax revenue for the 1970-71 fiscal year has been received. It amounts to $498,400—much more than had been anticipated. Based on these figures, he has revised the 1971-72 sales tax revenue to $540,000 which raises the anticipated general fund revenue by $62,500.

Even general insurance provided a saving. It is $12,800 less than estimated previously.

Thus, although the entire general fund section of the budget rose by $322,825, to a new high of $2,394,863, the portion to be financed by property taxes only rose some $30,000 to $578,014. The $30,000 represents the higher taxes property owners must pay.

Largest budget increase is the $98,000 pay raise city employes are being granted. This is based largely on a 5 per cent cost of living increase, plus higher increases for some categories to keep pace with the average of five neighboring cities. Police are receiving 6½ per cent more and library workers 10 per cent.

Agreements had been reached with all worker groups except the Firefigrters Union. Hamilton appointed Corey and Fire Chief Herb Freitas to aid Van Dusen as a negotiating team. Hamilton said that the firemen had been offered substantially "the same as the others."

A police department spokesman said no attempt was made to chase the suspect car as it headed toward San Francisco.

Such an attempt would have endangered Mayeda's life, police felt.

The shaken, but otherwise unharmed, storeowner phoned police from the 100 block of Paloma Street near the college.

The suspect's car was recovered nearby.

Mayeda said his captors fled on foot into the Ingleside District after abandoning the getaway car.

How much loot the pair got for their efforts was still being determined this morning.

a working tax base the mountain development would be financially out of reach. Even if it were included in any annexation agreement it would not be able to offset the cost of improvements, Daly City officials now feel.

Whichever city gets the mountain will be responsible for providing major improvements such as off-site arterial streets, sewage plant expansion, water reservoirs and pumping plants, officials point out.

Before any steps to reopen the door between the city and Foremost-McKesson can be taken, city manager David Rowe wants responsibilities for projects spelled out.

Sherman Eubanks, of the Crocker Land Division of Foremost-McKesson, was unavailable for comment on the matter.

Lycett while critical of the developers' hesitancy to unveil specifics of their plans slapped South San Francisco Planning Director Daniel Pass for "uncalled for criticism of our city."

Pass has critized Daly City's failure to develop properly the Serramonte section of the city.

Pass has repeatedly noted that the mountain should be developed and planned by one city — preferably South San Francisco.

Daly City's decision to pull out of any development on San Bruno Mountain has canceled further discussion on building a $400,000 equestrian center.

The matter had come up before the Daly City Planning Commission last Tuesday, but the city staff recommended the project be held up pending future hearings on total development of the mountain by Foremost-McKesson Property Company.

Developers of the 41-acre equestrian park, which would have included training rings, trails, barns and parking lots, asked for rezoning of the abandoned Piombo Quarry area on the northern slopes of the mountain.

The Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) has scheduled hearings on the future of San Bruno Mountain at its meeting in September.

Deadline for submission of proposals by cities continguous to the mountain was July 20.

Planner Urges Annexation by SSF

City Planner Dan Pass Wednesday officially recommended to councilmen that South San Francisco put in its bid to the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) for the annexation of San Bruno Mountain.

Councilmen responded by instructing City Manager Gale Dreisbach to seek an extension of a July 20 deadline. Cities had been asked by LAFCO to submit their intentions at that date.

LAFCO has set a sphere of influence hearing concerning San Bruno Mountain for September 22. They asked cities contiguous to the mountain interested in annexation to reply by July 20 so proposals could be studied.

Pass' recommendation does not come as a surprise. He has long contended that the only proper way of developing San Bruno Mountain would be to have one city do it.

He had prepared a draft of a letter outlining half-a-dozen reasons why he thinks South San Francisco is that city.

First he said dismemberment and scattering of parcels to several cities would destroy unity and cohesion vital to proper planning.

He said the parceling to cities for development would create an unwholesome urban competition which could result in over urbanization and commercialization of the mountain, and mean a loss of open space.

The third reason it should be developed by one city is that splitting of parcels to cities would enrich the city that developed commercial and industrial areas, while penalizing the cities that received the craggy reserve areas.

Pass said South San Francisco is the one city that is well organized and financially able to service San Bruno Mountain.

The city planner also said that if there were a sharing in the development and South San Francisco were not granted industrial and commercial precincts, the city's tax base would not be sufficient to annex other parts of the mountain.

Pass added that in case of sharing, the city most likely to receive the industrial and commercial areas would be Daly City.

A major point Pass made was that the lands involved are primarily in the South San Francisco watershed. Regardless of who develops the mountain, South San Francisco will receive the rain runoff. Pass contends that since this is the case, South San Francisco should have control of that runoff.

Pass said that since the Crocker Land Company announced its desire to develop the mountain there has been a scurry to get in. In addition to South San Francisco and Daly City, the city of Brisbane also is affected by the development.

Pass praised Brisbane's industrial park as "challenging ours." He remained critical of Daly City's ability to handle annexation in its entirety. "From what I've seen in Serramonte, I have to stand by my recommendation," said Pass.

According to Pass, he and Councilman Frank Bertucelli attended the last sphere of influence meeting.

Pass said Daly City officials asked for annexation rights from the heart of the Brisbane industrial area down to the South San Francisco side of the mountain. "They had elaborate proposals and documentation the likes of which I haven't seen in 16 years of planning," he said.

Mayor Bill Borba favors Pass' proposal and said he was ready to send the letter immediately. "Our problem in the past is that we (the city) have been Johnny Come Lately's." He pointed to Serramonte and the San Francisco Airport properties as those South San Francisco could have had if they had acted.

Councilman Patrick Ahern said the city had no choice in the Serramonte situation. He wants to study the financial feasibility of Pass' recommendation.

"This development could go as high as $40 million," said Ahern. Pass admitted the project would be more than a sacrifice for the city. "It would be a crusade," he said.

Total annexation by South San Francisco would mean the city would double its land area. The mountain contains approximately 3,000 acres, or nearly six square miles, equivalent to South San Francisco as it is now, landwise

Pedro Creek Park Priority Is Sought

San Pedro Creek Park should be given number one priority in development — even over Pescadero Creek Park — members of the county's Park and Recreation Commission decided last Wednesday.

The commission agreed that some work should be done to provide access to Pescadero Creek park to meet requirements of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, but that the first work should be done in the San Pedro Creek Park just south of Pacifica.

John T. Brook Jr., acting director of parks and recreation, said that both he and Director Ralph H. Shaw have agreed that San Pedro Creek Park should be given the highest priority. He said there are three other parks in the vicinity of Pescadero Creek Park — Memorial Park, Butano Park and Portola State Park, while there is no regional park in the north coastal part of the county.

Brook reported County Manager M.D. Tarshes has asked that planning steps and development concepts of parks be submitted by September.

According to Brook, the number one priority has already been given to the Coyote Point shoreline park in San Mateo and Foster City.

"There is a great need in the northern part of the county for a park," Commissioner Herbert G. Petersen said. He suggested minimal improvement be made by inmates at the county's honor camp near La Honda to the Pescadero Park.

Brook said the county has $27,000 available for improvement of Pescadero Creek Park.

Commissioner Joseph J. Higgins asked for a report by the commission's next meeting.

Crestmoor Canyon Freeway Critic Wins a Council Point

A critic of the proposed Crestmoor Canyon Freeway—State Route 380—called San Bruno's request to keep the freeway at four lanes instead of eight, "legally meaningless" at last week's council meeting.

Mrs. Elinor Larsen, 456 Hawthorne, San Bruno Sierra Club representative, was told, in essence, that she was right.

Two weeks ago, councilmen voted to ask the Division of Highways to redesign the freeway, proposed to extend Interstate 380—the future Airport-Serra route—to the Coast Freeway. Instead of eight lanes, they voted to ask for four lanes, with a 46-foot median strip and a bikeway on one side. Part of the median strip would be available for rapid transit or for expansion to six lanes.

No one had any comment on her charge that the 46-foot median, plus the bikeway, would actually allow for expansion to a full eight lanes. (Each freeway lane is 12 feet wide.)

She further charged that under state law, no public hearings are required, nor does the Division have to consult local cities to widen a freeway. She asked the Council to obtain an opinion from the city attorney.

City Atty. Joe Galligan did not disagree with her. He explained, however, that actually there has been no proposal even to change the 1962 freeway agreement.

Ban on Septic Tanks Might be Relaxed

The county may be ready to relax its ban against septic tanks, thus permitting greater single-family residential development of rural areas.

"I believe the Board of Supervisors is ready to open the door a little bit on the use of septic tanks under certain conditions," Commissioner Robert Levy told one unhappy landowner Wednesday before the County Planning Commission.

At another point Chairman Wallace Benson said the commission will try to arrange an early meeting with the supervisors on the subject.

"There might be a change in thinking," Benson commented.

And a policy statement being prepared by the commission at the request of the supervisors emphasizes restrictions against large scale non-single family developments.

In other action that was heartening to landowners, the commission agreed to give additional study to a proposal that all land splits into parcels of 60 acres or less be made subject to county review. The county zoning ordinance presently exempts all subdivisions of 40 acres or more.

Assistant Planning Director George Laakso said the 60-acre requirement would put the county law in step with the State Subdivision Map Act and would give the county control over some critical areas. He described as "tragic" a number of current subdivision projects over which the county has no control.

Holding back its recommendations on septic tanks, the commission last month sent on to the supervisors a recommendation that the 60-acre requirement be enacted. The board was surprised to find a number of objectors in the room, however, among them Stuart W. Auchincloss, representing the San Mateo County Landowners Association. He charged that the Planning Commission had not given the matter sufficient study, whereupon the board sent it back to the commission for further review.

Auchincloss told the commission Wednesday that the county, by increasing restrictions on the use of land, is "making it more difficult for small people to get hold of pieces of land."

"The pressure will build up," he said, "until the one-acre sewered subdivision we all fear will come to pass."

"It is better to have five-acre homesites on septic tanks than one-acre lots in a pattern on sewers," Levy agreed.

W. H. Leynse of Los Altos that the increased restrictions are driving the county in the direction of high-density development, the opposite of what the county is trying to achieve through the restrictions.

Mrs. Helen Kincaid of San Francisco said she and her husband bought 85 acres in the South County in 1956.

"We're not going to live long enough to do anything with it or enjoy it," she told the commission.

Mrs. Kincaid said county restrictions and taxes have increased steadily through the years.

"The county won't let us develop," she complained, "and we can't sell it." You are taxing us right out of our property. It is the most flagrant confiscatory action I ever heard of. It's un-American.

"You have landowners in a vise-like stranglehold and we can only go down for the county, or break the hold."

Levy suggested to Mrs. Kincaid that she approach the county again with a plan to subdivide the property into lots large enough to make septic tanks feasible.

"I can't promise you anything," he told her, "except that we will work with you."

S.S.F. Cable TV Asks Rate Boost

A requested rate boost by South San Francisco's cable television franchise — from a $4 per hookup to $5.25 — has been set aside for further study by councilmen.

The councilmen did agree, however, that there would be future video taping of council meetings by Western TV Cable.

Along with this decision went approval for the building department to take the necessary steps to upgrade lighting in city hall offices as well as prepare for the necessary camera lighting.

As to the rate increase request, Chuck Whitlock, vice president and general manager of Western TV Cable, gave a presentation telling how inflation is responsible for the request. He read numerous figures, noting that the franchise has been operating at a loss for four years.

Other reasons Whitlock gave for the loss were the expanding of the operation with the related capital costs.

The local program origination (such as council meeting taping) has meant an investment of $120,000, according to Whitlock. He said estimated annual operating costs are $60,000.

The original contract for installation of the system was $514,500 in 1967. Since the first subscriber hookup in 1968, Whitlock said the firm has put $780,000 more into the system, not counting the local program origination money.

Whitlock said the $4 rate is below the county average of $5.30, and even with the increase to $5.25 it would still be below the average. There still would be no initial installation charge. However, Whitlock is asking that $1.25 be charged for added outlets, commercial apartments and FM service, all of which have been free to this point.

Some in the audience questioned the fact that the rate increase request of 31 per cent was 21 per cent above what Whitlock presented as a cost of living increase over the same years the system has been losing money.

The request is the first since the franchise went into operation in 1967.

S.S.F. Garbage Recycling Is Proposed to Council

South San Francisco councilmen Wednesday heard a proposal for recycling home garbage that was offered as a solution to the city's controversial ordinance banning the non-return-container.

Wayne Trewhitt, associated with Solid Waste Engineering and Transfer Systems, told the councilmen the proposal would not cost the city money. He asked for moral support.

According to Trewhitt half-a-dozen separate businesses have gotten together and decided on a plan to build a pilot plant on Sunset Scavenger property across from Candlestick Park.

To do this they are seeking a federal grant, which Trewhitt said already has been applied for, using the cities of San Francisco and Mountain View as the non-profit base.

A spokesman for Reynolds Aluminum Company, one of the financial contributors, estimated the cost of the recycling plant at $1.5 million. He said the federal grant request would be for 75 per cent of this amount, with private industries (not cities) supplying the other 25 per cent in either cash or "in kind" services and materials.

Trewhitt said the only reason he (and several others associated with the proposal) were at the council meeting was because they had read so much about the ordinance to ban non-returnable cans and bottles.

Ken Wuest of the firm of Wilsey and Ham, designers of the recycling plant, explained the operation. He said 1,000 tons a day of garbage would go into the plant. The transfer station now taking garbage from San Francisco to Mountain View carries 1700 tons a day.

The 1,000 tons would first go into a ferrous metal portion of the plant. A Los Angeles firm would recycle the ferrous metals. The remainder of the 1,000 tons, estimated at 400 tons, will continue through more sophisticated breakdown, whatever can't be recycled would be used for landfill.

A schematic drawing showed the 400 tons going through a grinder, an air classifier, a glass screening process before entering a flotation vat. The next step was a de-watering screen where wood chips are released. There is a rinse screen and a drying kiln.

D.C. Worker Is Assaulted

A 41-year-old Daly City construction worker was found semi-conscious and incoherent on the floor of a Division of Highways restroom in a rest area on Interstate Highway 280 Thursday afternoon after he had been robbed.

Richard J. Robles of 434 San Diesu, Daly City, told Deputy Thomas G. Graham that he had been hit on the side of the head with a heavy object which felt as if it was filled with sand. Robles was unable to talk until he received emergency treatment at Chope Community Hospital.

He was found on the floor of the restroom by a passerby and Highway Patrolman John G. Woodcock about 4:40 p.m.

Armed Thief Takes $200

A daylight robbery July 13 of a South San Francisco delicatessen resulted in the loss of approximately $200 in cash.

Police said a lone gunman held up the clerk of Charlie's Delicatessen, 1148 Mission Road, at 2 p.m.

He was described to police as a white male, about 20 years old, 6-foot-2 and 175 pounds. Police said he had dark brown hair, wore a windbreaker, plaid shirt, levis and wore sunglasses.

According to police, the man approached the counter, pulled a pistol from his pocket and demanded money. He was last seen running south on Mission Road, police said.

Solving a Set Design Problem

How do you design a set for an original musical when your basic tools are limited funds and unlimited imagination?

Chuck Pharis, the Millbrae Players' new technical director for their upcoming producton "The Un-Enchanted Prince," solves this problem by first constructing a miniature scale model of the intended design and then checking it out for application on a larger scale.

Pharis, tall, blond and articulate, is also a paid technical director and set designer for KCSM TV Channel 14, which telecasts educational and informative programs throughout the Bay Area from the campus of the College of San Mateo.

A virtual "beehive of activity," Pharis, 24, has been working around theaters and stages since his high school days in Fremont, California.

Even then, he will tell you, he was in love with the theater and spent all of his free time in school and little theater productions, acting and working behind the scenes.

Before attending the College of San Mateo and actively participating in dramatic productions there, he worked as a member of the Foothill College Drama Department at Foothill College in Los Altos and then spent four years doing "freelance set design or anything that came along."

Pharis will be incorporating a new innovation in the set he's presently constructing for the Players at the little theater at 255 Broadway.

He's using a synthetic foam product called polyurethane to help give dimension to walls and archways.

"You mix two chemicals together, then it foams up and you mold it to any shape desired," he explained. "You have to work fast because it hardens in less than a minute. When it dries, it can be painted with a spraygun."

He's used this technique in designing sets for the College of San Mateo Drama Department, he said, and finds it highly effective for creating certain special effects.

With the other members of the staff led by Director John Rechtfertig of Pacifica, Pharis is contributing his expertise in readying the theater for the early August opening of the Players' latest production.

The group, one of the oldest theaters of the Little Theater Association of America, draws most of its members from various parts of the Peninsula and San Francisco.

The theater is an intrinsic part of Millbrae's history and occupies the structure originally built as the city's first fire station.

Unintentional, though ironic, testimony to its original tenants are the various "no smoking, please" signs scattered throughout the building.

Even the old flag pole towering above the roof dates back to its old fire-fighting days.

Back stage help or musicians interested in working on the current production can apply at the theater most evenings or call 697-8614.

Consider Child's Interest on Outings

THE POST'S Family Forum

The problem with arranging a special outing for young children is that most adults tend to expect too much response to structured, even semi-structured activities.

They are frustrated and disappointed when the children don't show the anticipated amount of enthusiasm and appreciation, as a result.

Think about the last time you took a child to the zoo for the day. How long was it before you heard complaints about tired feet, hunger or boredom. Chances are it wasn't long!

Adults think about going to the zoo and touring the entire premises, but children seem to find that approach too MUCH of a good thing. The excitement and the novelty of the visit will persist through the first half hour to 45 minutes but interest then will wane and your offspring will search about for some more active type of diversion — usually at the playground or fairy land area.

If you can manage to see the zoo in easy stages, five or six cages a day, and go several times during the vacation period, you will be more relaxed about the short attention span of youngsters and your child will find the animals more interesting if he isn't forced to appreciate them all at one time.

Some children might want to see the animals first and later the playground area, while others would want to play first, then doddle longer before the animal cages.

Whichever way your offspring elects to see the exhibits, allow sufficient time and try not to rush through any of the activity.

Museums are another difficult concept for youngsters. While moms may be thrilled-to-death with the delicate beauty of the exhibits in the Jade Room of deYoung museum, most children would become restive if forced to spend longer than five minutes looking at carved vases or jade landscapes.

Plan your trips to the museum in the same way you would plan an outing to the zoo, selecting something the children will be interested in. Discuss it at home to see if you can get them to exhibit any sort of curiosity.

For example, American Indians usually are exciting people about whom children have dozens of questions and probably a lot of preconceived and erroneous notions. When they talk about the Indians, explain you know a place where they can see lots of Indian relics and crafts, then, with the excitement running high, cart everyone off to the Indian wing of the museum.

Don't try to expand this visit to include the Egyptian room or Early American furniture; just go and see the Indian room, have a snack at the food stand or in the tea garden and go home.

If each trip is for a special purpose and if the exposure to culture isn't too prolonged, the children won't develop that defensive veneer which eventually causes them to completely reject the idea of visiting museums.

Junior museums, while geared to catch the interest of the younger set, can be overdone if the parents seem too intent. The San Mateo County Junior Museum is an excellent place to take children of all ages. Located at 1701 Coyote Point Drive in San Mateo, it has permanent dioramas of wildlife, a display of fossils and minerals and various live animals. Many of the small animals may be checked out, like books from a library, to be enjoyed at home.

The museum is open every Sunday afternoon and all day the other six days of the week. Admission is free.

As much fun as fairs are, don't plan to overdo the activity — if you expect your children to have a good time. Fairs tend to be hot, crowded and noisy, as well as exciting, colorful and invigorating. Together, they tend to wear down the young trooper.

Visit the fair several times, letting the children see what they want and do the things which interest youngsters.

Meanwhile, you make a list of the activities which appear to be especially interesting for you and your husband. Then, some evening when the children are home with a babysitter, you and your husband go and leisurely pick out the exhibits that you want to see and then spend as much time as you please.

Try this technique next week when the San Mateo County Fair gets under way and I am sure you'll enjoy it more than you have enjoyed any fair since you were a teenager!

A Teen Council on Coast

A Teen Council made up of high school, club and organizational representatives is being formed in Pacifica.

The new unit is to be a subcommittee of the Pacifica Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission and the Youth Advisory Commission.

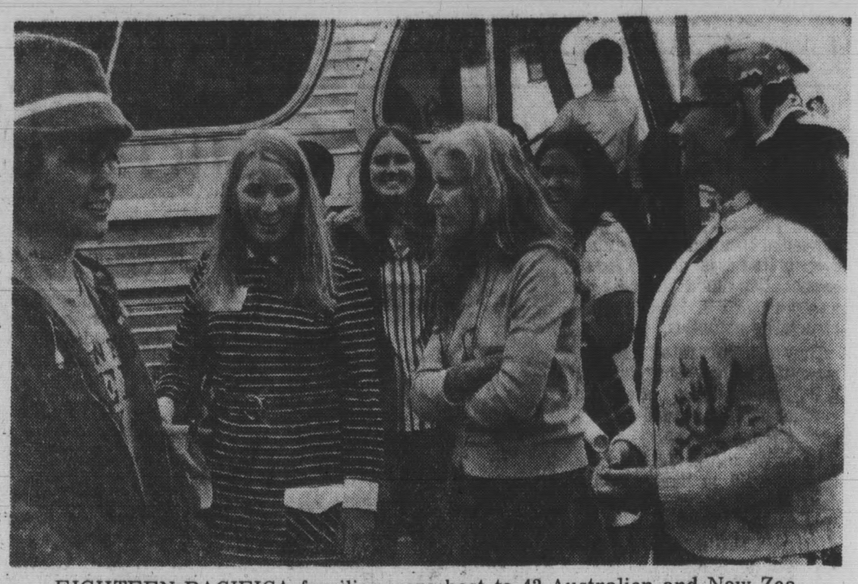
The council is to provide a forum for mutual discussions about teen activities, work toward the coordination of teen activities, and the development of new programs for Pacifica youth.

One of the first projects of the Teen Council will be the establishment of a teen newsletter to inform teens of activities and happenings of interest to them and to provide them with information about services available to them in Pacifica.

The Council is made up of representatives from Oceana High School, Terra Nova High School, Pacifica 4-H Club, the Youth Service Bureau, and the Youth Advisory Commission.

These members are in the process of contacting other teen oriented Pacifica clubs to enlist their support and participation.

Teens in the community currently involved in organizations serving teens should contact a member of the Youth Advisory Commission or Ginny Silva in the Park, Beach and Recreation Department.



EIGHTEEN PACIFICA families were host to 43 Australian and New Zealand American Field Service International Exchange students July 14-15. The high school students were ending a year in the Mid-western states, where they lived with American families and attended school. The Pacifica stop-over was their last on USA soil. They departed Thursday for home, from S.F. International airport. The Pacifica hosts were the Bern Hymans, Ken Stroms, Mark Savages, Harry Moseleys, Mae Kennison, Rich Radomskis, Charles Starrs, Charles McCarthys, Ruddi Trettens, Ruth Boudinot, Fred Ballews, Walter Baefs, Rex Starr, Verla West, Charlotte Dor, Pat Bresnahan, Lisa Simons, Roisin Kiernan and Cathy Drake. In top photo is Jefferson High School District Trustee Ruth Boudinot, who was the hostess of four exchange girls. She has last-minute chat with her new friends before they board the bus. Below, Pacifica Postmaster Ken Strom helps two of his New Zealand guests put their luggage aboard the Airport bus.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK ADAMS (Leslie Davis)

Justweds' First Home in S.M.

Southern California and Mexico were the honeymoon destinations of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dana Adams (Leslie Ann Davis) who were married at Our Lady of Angels Church in Burlingame.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie S. Davis of Burlingame who hosted a reception following the service at the Casa de Flores in San Carlos.

A white peau de soie gown trimmed with Alencon lace was worn by the bride when she said her vows.

Lorrie Davis served as ner sister's maid of honor and Liana, Lisa and Linda Davis, also sisters of the bride, shared secondary attendants' duties with Dolores Cotton. Lanette Davis, another sister, was the flower girl.

The attendants were similarly gowned in baby blue Empire gowns with high necklines and long full sleeves.

Michael Klick of South San Francisco was best man and ushers were Gordon Adams, Frank's brother, Bud Matthews; Randy Shaw and Dana Adams. Layne Davis, the bride's brother, carried the rings.

The new matron studied at Mills High School and the College of San Mateo. The Rev. Edward P. Higgins, who conducted the ceremony, is her great uncle.

Group Show at Pacifica Art Gallery

A group show is being featured at Perinwinkle Art Gallery, Pedro Point, Pacifica, through August 1.

Paintings by Pamela King, photographs by John Griffiths and drawings by Robert Folger, San Bruno are the three artists and art mediums exhibited.

Pam King has painted for 10 years. She studied art at San Diego State and was active there in Kappa Pi Art Fraternity. Mrs. King describes herself as an environmentalist artist because her impressionistic paintings reflect her surroundings. California vineyards, eucalyptus and beach scenes have a fantasy quality about them.

Griffiths has turned to color photographs for the present show. John has photographed Princeton, Pacifica, San Francisco and Marin County. Griffiths is a graduate of Oceana High School and College of San Mateo.

A variety of drawings by Folger is part of the group show. Although watercolor is his primary medium, pencil and ink allow a glimpse of Bob's humor. Several drawings have an etching-like quality

NELL NORTON

Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

With food prices as they are, it's nice to find a fancy entree that doesn't cost a fancy price. Meatloaf Wellington is an elegant dish that you will be proud to serve.

The ingredients are staple items: bread crumbs, egg, onion and Tomato Sauce with Tomato Tidbits combined with ground beef. Worcestershire Sauce, salt and pepper are added for seasoning. Half the tomato sauce is used in the meatloaf and the other half may be used in a tomato-type sauce for the meat by combining the sauce with wine, parsley and sugar.

Be sure to use ground beef as it is juicier and less expensive. The general rule is to allow one-fourth pound per serving.

The liverwurst or liver pate' is used to spread on the meatloaf is a very good source of protein and iron and adds an extra nutrient bonus in addition to flavor. If, however, you know that family members or expected guests have a particular dislike for liver, then it could be omitted.

MEATLOAF WELLINGTON

1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
1 egg, beaten
½ cup chopped onion
1 can (15-oz.) Tomato Sauce with Tomato Tidbits
1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine the one and one-half pounds beef, one cup bread crumbs, one beaten egg, half cup chopped onion, one half can of the tomato sauce, one teaspoon each Worcestershire sauce, and salt and fourth teaspoon pepper.

Press into 9x5-inch loaf pan; turn out in baking pan. Bake in 350-degree oven for 1 hour. Remove from oven; drain off drippings. Cool.

NOTE: Use just half the can of Tomato Sauce and tidbits in the meatloaf, save the rest for sauce.

PASTRY

1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
One-third cup cold water
3 Tablespoons, liverwurst or liver pate'
1 egg, beaten

Combine the one-and-one-half cups flour and half teaspoon salt; cut in the half cup shortening until mixture resembles small peas. Stir in the one-third cup water until flour is moistened and mixture forms a ball. Roll out on floured surface. Cut to 12x10-inch rectangle; reserve trimmings.

Spread the three tablespoons liverwurst over top and sides of cooled meatloaf. Carefully place loaf, top side down, in centery of pastry. Fold up long sides; overlap one inch. Brush edges with beaten egg to seal. Trim ends; fold up and brush with egg to seal. Place on baking sheet, seam side down. Brush with egg.

Decorate with reserved trimmings and brush with egg. (I cut the pastry into strips, twisted them and formed a lattice top on the meatloaf. Or you could cut the pastry into rounds, leaves, etc., just be as artistic as you wish.)

Bake at 425-degrees, 30 minutes or until golden brown.

SAUCE

2 Tablespoons chopped parsley
One-third Cup red wine
1 Tablespoon brown sugar
Reserved Tomato Sauce and Tomato Tidbits

Combine the one-third cup wine, two tablespoons parsley, one tablespoon brown sugar and remaining sauce and heat. Serve over Wellington. Serves 6.

Poached Salmon

Poached fish has always been a culinary project that intrigued me, but I never knew quite where to begin. So in the best reporter's tradition, we seek the advice of an expert in this case, Arno Schmidt, executive chef at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City.

Says Chef Schmidt:

"A popular dish at the Waldorf-Astoria during the summer months is Poached Cold Salmon in Aspic.

"With the fishing season in full swing, I would like to tell you how we poach fish in the Waldorf kitchens so you can prepare the one that did not get away.

"We buy fresh salmon (head off) only, and it comes from the fish dealer, weighing about six pounds each. Pedro, our fish butcher, cuts the salmon into boneless, skinless portions, about eight ounces each. How he does it is hard to describe. He has been doing it for about 35 years, and the fish just seems to fall off the bone as soon as Pedro approaches it.

"Now the Chef Poissonier prepares a Court Bouillon. The French word Court means short, and it has nothing to do with skimping of ingredients, but rather refers to the short cooking time the bouillon (stock) is boiled.

"A Court Bouillon is an aromatic liquid is which seafood is poached. It can mean sea water or the very strong stock for your cold salmon or bass. The idea is that certain fish are fairly weak in flavor and need a strong stock flavored with vegetables, spices and wine to make it delicious.

"To prepare two quarts of Court Bouillon, start off with about two quarts of water. Add one-half cup each thinly sliced carrots, onions and celery; a few parsley stems, one cup of white wine, one-quarter cup wine vinegar; a small bay leaf; a pinch of thyme; a few crushed peppercorns, and salt to taste. Bring mixture to a boil about 20 minutes. In that short time, the flavors of the vegetables and spices have been transferred into the water.

"Now add the fish, lower the heat, and poach below boiling point until the fish is done. The length of time depends entirely on the thickness of the fish and not the weight. Whole fish (bone in) will take a little longer than a fillet of comparable size. When in doubt, check with a long needle to see how much resistance you can feel. If the fish is served whole, it is traditionally presented with a little Court Bouillon. If it is eaten cold as you probably would during the summer months — cool it off in its stock so it will remain juicy and well flavored. It can be decorated and coated with aspic jelly to make it more attractive.

"Like most other foods, freshly cooked salmon tastes best. If you expect guests for dinner, poach the fish about noon. Cool it off in a cool spot, and about 6 p.m. lift it out of the Court Bouillon. The fish will be soft and tender, and if you left the skin on, it can now be removed very easily.

"Getting a whole fish out of the pot without breaking it can be a problem. If you have a fish kettle with a rack, your worries are over. If not, wrap the fish in cheesecloth and truss with string so that you will have something to hook onto when you lift the fish out."

Another summer fish possibility uses canned Salmon:

SOUTH SEAS SALMON SANDWICHES

18-ounce can shredded pineapple
3 sounce package cream cheese
¼ cup sour cream
1 cup thinly sliced celery
½ teaspoon onion salt
½ cup shredded coconut
1 green pepper, seeded and chopped
1 pound can salmon, drained and flaked
16 slices sandwich bread
Soft Butter

Drain pineapple, reserving the juice. Mash cream cheese with 3 tablespoons of the reserved pineapple juice and beat until smooth. Stir in sour cream. Combine cream cheese mixture with celery, onion salt, coconut and green pepper. Fold in shredded pineapple and flaked salmon.

Trim crusts from bread and butter the slices. Put each two slices together with the salmon filling between. Cut each sandwich into 4 triangles. Makes 8 sandwiches.

New YWCA Programs Are Listed

The summer program for the San Mateo YWCA is keynoted to the word "Fun," according to Director Justine M. Williams.

Classes in tennis, golf, knitting, driver training, modern-jazz, and the Widget World Nursery School are open to anyone who is interested in registering now, she said.

Tennis I is available to both boys and girls, men and women, anyone 13 years old and older. Classes are held on Saturdays from 10-11 a.m. For those who have completed Tennis I or an equivalent, Tennis II is offered on Saturdays from 11-noon.

Golf classes begin August 7 at 10 followed by another class from 1:30-2:30 p.m. at Harding Park Golf Course. Ted Smith is the instructor.

August 2 is the beginning date for knitting.

"Make something for yourself, your family, friends, or any expected newcomers," Miss Williams said.

Driving training classes will begin July 27.

Modern-Jazz is being held in San Bruno, and is open still for those interested.

The Widget World Nursery School provides good summer recreation for the preschool set, Miss Williams said.

Millbrae Is First Address

Millbrae is the first address for Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Anthony Moraes (Sharon Elizabeth Powers) who were married at All Souls Catholic Church in South San Francisco.

The newlyweds received felicitations at Russo's Restaurant in San Bruno. They honeymooned in Southern California.

Sharon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Powers of South City. She wore an ivory gown of rayon organza fashioned with alencon lace long sleeves which were detailed with seed pearls and crystal embroidery.

Linda Jordan attended the bride as matron of honor and secondary attendants were Deborah Barbetti, Janice Ciardella and Roberta Paul. They were all identically gowned in champagne colored floor length costumes.

Michael Borg was best man for the benedict who is the son of Mrs. Gloria DeLong of San Bruno and the late Lawrence Cruz Moraes. Ushering duties were shared by Greg Breitenstein, Patrick Parker and Ray Schenone.

The new Mrs. Moraes was graduated from South San Francisco High School and the College of San Mateo where her husband, a Serra High School alumnus, also studied. Larry plans to continue his education at San Jose State College. He is affiliated with Alpha Eta Rho fraternity.

WITH ALL THE TALK going about concerning those "secret" Pentagon Papers, few Daly Cityites remember the report to the city council last year regarding a study of the stop sign situation. We've nicknamed the report "The Octagon Papers." Like the Washington, D.C. matter the latter report also was a mind boggler. At least City Hall didn't classify it "secret.'

WE WOULD REMIND Colma City Attorney Robert Cornell that if somehow it was determined the appointment of Councilman Glen Duncan had to be re-accomplished it would not be a simple matter of having him get up and walk around the table and be reappointed. The Government Code on such things says if a person is not appointed to fill a vacancy on a council within 30 calendar days the matter must go to an election.

DALY CITY'S determination NOT to aquire San Bruno Mountain has politicians voicing all sorts of opinions. Most think it's just another reverse-psychology trick by Mayor Bud Lycett. Asked about this, Lycett said those expressing such opinions can think anything they want to. "The story is clear—we just don't think it will be that big an asset to our city judging by the information we have available on the subject," Lycett told us.

PERHAPS SSF PLANNER Daniel Pass does want San Bruno Mountain to play with, but we'll wager here and now most members of the City Coucil aren't too enchanted with the idea—especially after figuring out what it will do to the city's presently low tax rate. What with elections in April and all. . . .

THERE'S GREEN IN THEM thar fireworks — Ask any of the 11 groups that operated fireworks stands in Daly City during the Fourth of July holiday. Most won't tell you how much they take in. But the Daly City Host Lions Club is PROUD of their profits from the venture.

The cash is used to help the blind and other fine works. How much did their small stand profit? About $4,000.

And Lion Ray (Logan), the guy with a heart bigger than his mouth, along with "some" help from other Lions, gets our "Nice Work Friend" nod of the month. (P.S. This award, plus 50 cents, will allow you to purchase a Safe and Sane firework display next year.)

HERE'S NEWS (I guess? ? ?) — California Highway Patrol has turned back to cities in the North County (except Broadmoor) patrol of all roads — except freeways. In years past the Patrol would cruise about on certain city streets to lift some of the burden. No more. Broadmoore, being the only police district left in the State (the world?), will still get the aid, Our CHP Man tells.

AND SPEAKING of Broadmoor — Being as the subject of Colma City police chief is kinda hot these days, Councilwoman Rena Vallerga made a motion last week to give Broadmoor police a monthly pay boost — from $1,000 to $2500 monthly — as a sort of "good intention" move, while a more permanent arrangement is made. Mrs. Vallerga wants Colma to have its own full-fledged police force (not just a chief) and wants a study made to determine the feasibility.

Meanwhile, Broadmoor Police District officials are pressing for a hike in their rates to offset the fact that homeowners in the district have been literally footing the bill for Colma protection in recent years.

NOTES ON A SHABBY CUFF — D.C. fireman Bob Barbanica has resigned as head of the Local International Firefighters Union. No replacement yet . . . D.C. councilman Louis J. Papan has gotta receive our "Devoted City Official" of the month award. Last Monday on vacation with the family in San Diego he left his wife, son and daughter sitting alone while he jetted to D.C. to attend the council study session.

Around midnight he jetted back to the family. Now, before the rumormongers start yapping, it was all at personal expense.

'Nuther words, Louis paid his own way . . . Former School trustee and D.C. City Treasurer Joe Lewkowitz told us Monday he was definitely in the race for his treasurer's job. Local mumble rumble is that some other very prominent citizens intend to oppose him, including a well-liked Westlake realtor.

MORE NOTES — How about that police Capt. John Walsh and those two armed youth the other night? This not only refelcts great credit on himself, but also the entire department. The old saying still holds that "Action Speaks Louder than Words." Not to imply that Jack didn't talk his head off to those armed kids.

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Want to spark a lively conversation in political circles?

Casually mention regional government and listen to the conversation come alive.

Regional government is loved and hated, depending on how a person regards the "big brother" concept of regional government.

There are some who despise all forms of regional controls, while others accept only those regional agencies which agree with their own purposes.

Still others will explain that while they are against regional forms of government it is coming like it or not.

The biggest hurdle this form of government must clear before it can concentrate on the variety of inter-county problems that appear to crop up on an increasing scale nowadays is the so-called "big brother syndrome."

Unless local government and private citizens can be convinced that only a "super agency" can solve their problems without compelling them to hand over complete control of their cities, the scheme is doomed to failure, or at the very least a multitude of delays.

San Mateo Mayor John Condon is an avowed opponent of regional government.

He argues such control will take home rule away from the people. Worse, it will not be receptive to needs of citizens because it will put the people out of reach of a local board geared to deal with the voting public.

Hometown rule is controlled by a community's citizens. Citizens can and do appear before city councils whenever they disagree on a matter affecting them, Condon points out.

These people are the voters who directly elect councilmen to their posts.

A regional board, whether it be appointed or elected by district, would be out of direct reach of the voter-citizen. It would be still another layer of government that would have to be negotiated, many officials feel.

To confuse the issue further, an all-embracing umbrella agency dedicated to complete regional control, including planning and taxation, would undoubtedly conflict with the duties and responsibilities of grassroots politics.

As an example, the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) is a regional volunteer agency made up of 91 cities located in nine counties in the Bay Area — from Sonoma to Santa Clara.

This agency (ABAG) has been accepted for the time being by the Federal Government and the State as the master clearing center for all federal funding requests from cities and counties.

It is a volunteer joint venture organization.

But as Daly City found out four years ago, when it decided to withdraw membership because it felt ABAG was not accomplishing anything for the $1,000 annual dues the city was paying, the federal government will not fund non-member city projects.

Daly City came back into the fold and almost overnight received a federal grant of $105,000 to fund a General plan study.

ABAG is extremely limited in its powers. Proponents of the concept have become disillusioned because of restrictions placed on it by some members and the government.

More muscle is needed by ABAG to carry out its original intent of solving problems on a regional basis throughout the Bay Area, members plead.

If not ABAG then a new all-encompassing body should be formed, supporters of regional government contend.

Condon, like many others in local government, thinks a nine-county Bay Area agency is too ambitious an undertaking.

First of Two Articles

They feel a more manageable body — perhaps two or three Peninsula counties — should first be formed. Such a body might be made up of San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties.

The problems of Sonoma are not necessarily the problems of San Mateo, Daly City councilman Frank Pacelli points out.

Pacelli is a member of several regional panels, including ABAG. He is also a director of the League of California Cities, representing San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara.

There are presently six regional agencies in existence in the county: the Bay Conservation and Development Commission (BCDC); Air Pollution Board; Water Quality Control Board (the State has a similar agency); Metropolitan Transit Agency; Regional Planning Commission (RPC), and ABAG.

One other, the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO), operates on county levels throughout the state.

An executive secretary and a small office staff maintain ABAG. They are paid from annual subscriptions provided by the 91 cities.

Other regional agencies are considered taxing agencies and have full-time staffs to operate them. The more agencies, the more staffs, the more money it costs taxpayers, Pacelli points out.

Many are duplicating studies being conducted by other agencies.

While one commission may be investigating air pollution on the Peninsula, another might well be involved in a study of transportation problems.

"The mere thought of giving an agency the power to plan, fund and tax is frightening," Condon says. "I wouldn't mind so much if (an agency) told us we must do this or that, but I don't like them stepping in an telling us how it must be done."

"We're being pushed into something we don't want or like," Condon said.

Observers sense Condon's statement of being "pushed into something" is true.

They feel the federal government, in a step towards political expediency, is not only urging, but actually forcing cities to knuckle under to a higher power in an effort to maintain tighter controls on development of projects that go beyond county lines.

In order to bring about this expediency higher government must brush aside protests from local government.

County cities strongly voice opposition to this move because they feel their constituents will lose a voice in how the city is run.

But the government has a method of making itself welcome by cities that are on the brink of tackling a major project, such as the Colma Creek flood control program or the mass transit system study that involves the entire County.

The government has the power to take money through taxes from the people. And it also has the power to give it back. For this reason it is often "welcomed" by cities.

Few, if any, cities can finance major projects without partial funding from the state and federal governments.

If is no secret that higher government — state and federal — would prefer to deal with one regional body rather than, say, 91 individual Bay Area cities in the field of sewage treatment or mass transportation, as examples.

Assemblyman John Knox (Dem., Contra Costa) feels cities in the Bay Area have defaulted on their responsibilities in matters affecting the region as a whole.

He includes ABAG in his criticism.

In pushing through the state Senate his proposal for creation of a new 40-seat nine-county agency to be elected based on population of a district, Knox said:

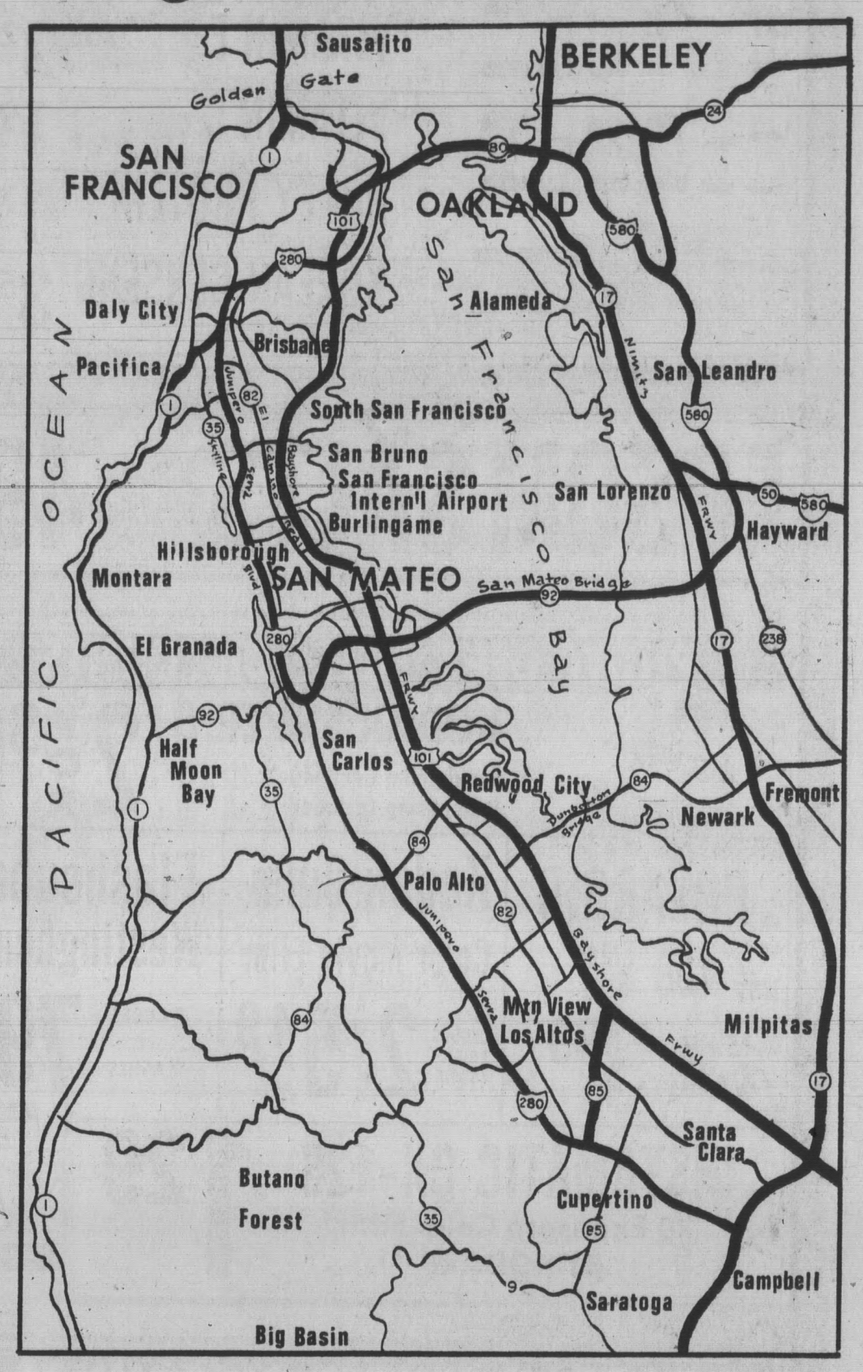
"It is absolutely essential that we do something about the balkanization of our area."

The proposed "Conservation and Development Agency of the Bay Area" would be the tie-in for all existing regional agencies and would operate on funds raised through levying a four-cent tax on each $100 of assessed valuation on property. It passed the Senate last month 41-16.

Once in operation, the super-agency would concern itself with coming up with a master plan for conservation and development of the region, including management and control of wastes and contaminants.

It would be an elected group. It would have the power to dictate to cities what will or will not be done in planning, construction and a multitude of other fields.

The proposal has yet to come before the Assembly.



REGIONAL government, whether limited to Peninsula counties or all of the Bay Area, has become a subject of hot argument among local governmental leaders. Opponents say such a superagency would take away local controls and be unresponsive to the people. Proponents claim regional government is needed to solve regional problems, such as pollution and mass transit, because present jurisdictions can't do it. The map shows the San Francisco-San Mateo-Santa Clara counties area, which some think might be feasible for a regional agency, since it isn't as far-reaching and ambitious as the nine-county Bay Area-wide agency concept.

American Youth Polled on Where They Stand

By SAMUEL CHANDLER
Daly City Librarian

A little more than a year ago, Vice President Agnew characterized the political dissenters on college campuses as "Malcontents, radicals, incendiaries, and civil and uncivil disobedients among our young."

Spurred by these words, many pollsters have taken to the field to determine the actual views of American youth.

Sam Chandler

A survey conducted by Purdue University and reported in the Saturday Review of September 19, 1971, holds that up to 40 per cent of the high school students find their schools repressive, their education an assembly line process and their society decaying and without ideals.

The Saturday Review article states a survey conducted by Kenneth and Mary Gergen of Swarthmore College indicated that 5000 students in thirty-nine colleges and universities declared the Vietnam War was the chief cause of vast political and social alienation.

One-third of the students said the war had made them feel more negative about organized religion and their families. One in five had considered leaving the United States. One in three said they had altered their career plans. Others indicated extreme confusion over their futures.

A RATHER DIFFERENT sort of a poll grew out of conversations between Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and college students who intern in his Washington office. One young person feels that white, mid-to-upper-class students who are turned-off by the system "feel guilty because while they are enjoying this highest standard of living, American Indians are starving and black ghettos are overrun by rats."

"What they see," he continued, "is that in America, home of that glorious dream, all sorts of people are starving . . . Their (the students) sense of moral indignation can't stand this; and they realize that the blame rests on the shoulders of their class." The results, this intern concludes, are "Their heroes are oppressed so they want to be oppressed. Their heroes are poor so they want to live a nonmaterial life."

Another of Rep. Udall's interns spoke for his generation saying, "Advantages and all, I still can't tolerate the richest country on earth allowing migrant children to grow up thinking they are bums and letting slum children be bitten by rats in their sleep while the government gives money to farmers not to grow crops, and appropriates funds for a supersonic transport which would damage our environment."

IT APPEARS, HOWEVER, that in spits of its criticism of the system youth still endorses the Puritan ethic as the best route to the good life. This is demonstrated by the Gallup Poll.

A report on this pool in Newsweek Magazine states that when asked if hard work and effort are necessary for you to achieve personal fulfillment and satisfaction, a stunning 85 per cent answered yes.

Still another surprise came when the students were asked to name the public figure of the last decade they most admired. The man whose name topped the list was John F. Kennedy with Martin Luther King as second. The names of very few revolutionaries, however, appeared on the list. President Nixon's name led the list of the most admired living person.

After studying the polls of young peoples' views, Mark A. Tessler and Ronald D. Hedlund of New Republic magazine wrote, "detractors of student protest movements might do well to consider the possibility that some of the nation's most able and dedicated young people are desperately trying to tell them that there is need for legitimate yet effective mechanisms for change."

Conventional Wisdom Is Dangerous Stuff

Conventional wisdom is dangerous stuff. It is the material of mistake and disaster. Its ultimate form is seen in the march of the lemmings who consider it conventionally wise to follow one another into the sea. All drown because none question the soundness of group thought or direction.

The United States seems particularly subject to this malaise. Through laziness and sometimes cupidity we often sustain claptrap of the hightest quality. A specious argument or unsupported conclusion once uttered is passed from mouth to mouth as professors, politicians and media men join in producing dogma. An endless circle of self-conviction is established and the more often a jewel of foolishness is repeated the more "true" it becomes.

This system of reinforced error has produced many myths. During World War II most of the nation accepted (or at least tolerated) the thought that we and our allies (including Russia) were a "brotherhood of democracies." At a later time, it required the refreshing honesty of Daniel Moynihan to blow away the false dream of a Peace Dividend which was current in the late sixties.

But no comparable period of our history produced more questionable doctrine than a short four-month period in 1954. From April to July of that year history churned at a rapid rate. This was the time of Dienbienphu and the Geneva Accords, and some of the preconceptions of that time have clouded our thought. It was a period ideally suited for myth-makers.

Conventional wisdom has it that American war policy in Vietnam has been conducted by Presidential fiat and without consultation or authority of Congress. The soothsayers have conveniently included Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson in the vastly oversimplified generality.

As to at least one of these Presidents, the exact opposite is true. History tells us that President Eisenhower was ready to support the French in Indochina, but that when Congressional leadership wouldn't go along the thought was abandoned.

Consider April 3, 1954. At this time Dienbienphu was under attack and an earlier myth of French strength had just been exploded. High officials of the Eisenhower administration were deeply concerned about the loss of Vietnam and its impact on the other nations of Southeast Asia and of the Pacific. The dominoes, they said, were about to fall.

On this date eight members of Congress were called to a secret meeting with John Foster Dulles and Admiral Arthur Radford who was then Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Dulles sought a joint resolution of Congress to permit President Eisenhower to use air and naval power in Indochina. Radford eloquently spoke in support of Dulles' request and proposed an air strike to save Dienbienphu.

The meeting lasted over two hours and Dulles was left empty-handed. Led by Lyndon o Jonson and John McCormack, the legislators questioned the wisdom of commitment without allies or the approval of the United Nations. In the manner of skilled politicians, Dulles wasn't told "no" but was sent on a fruitless search for allies.

His search, it developed, was lonely and unsuccessful. Without Great Britain, important allies weren't available, and Churchill and Eden refused to go along.

The impact of these facts on current mythology should be devastating. A modern American President seemingly wanted to go to war. Congressional leadership was consulted and refused to support such action without allies. Allies were not available and we did not go to war. Folling this Dienbienphu fell and the meetings in Geneva began. No plainer case of deference of the executive to congressional power can be made. Furthermore, President Eisenhower's manner of handling this problem precisely followed his often articulated belief in constitutional government of limited Presidential powers.

DC Playground Activity

CROCKER PARK
By Tony Smith

Crocker Playground had two dancers. Skeeter Davis and Eugene Sweet. They performed two dances, "Cold Duck" and "Sissy Strut" in the Serramonte Shopping Center Mall as part of the 1971 Carnival of Drama.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT
By Steve Roche

The ping-pong champions of Franklin D. Roosevelt have been crowned. The champs were in the midget division: Marty Sands, who defeated tough Bill Geoge in the finals, and Bob Finney in the beginner divisions.

Franklin D. Roosevelt Playground recently participated in the Carnival of Drama sponsored by the Recreation Department. The talented actors in our production of the gunfight at O.K. Corral were Jim Ramsey, Jim Russitano, and the suave Jerry Lewis. The narration of the production was performed by the multi-talented Jeannine Thordsen.

Future activities at Franklin D. Roosevelt include an Indian Softball League which begins soon. Sign-ups are already being taken so hurry and form your team.

We have a barbeque every Friday at 1:30 p.m., and a softball game which features future stars, daily at 1:30 p.m.

M.P. BROWN
By Paula Dolder

We participated in the Carnival of Drama at Serramonte Shopping Center, presenting "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Cathy Turbin was Snow White, Sam Anagnostou was the prince and Esther Espina was the wicked Queen.

The Seven Dwarfs were Melissa Gay, Joy Worley, Michele York, Jeanne Anagnostou, Jim Mitchell, Denise Skarlanic and Jackie Harvey

In "Aggravation", Mike Garcia finally won a game and everyone is getting more and more involved in "Aggravation" tournaments.

NORTHRDIGE PARK
By Steve Becker

Pat Neligan emerged victorious in the weekly carroms tournament for his second straight title. Victor Siriammi, Jim Neligan, Richard Rogers, Felix Jackson and Richard Woodridge all finished as top-notch competitors; while Joe "the joke" Bederman won in the consolation bracket.

Wednesday, the action was highlighted by our first barbeque which was a fine success after we survived a windy morning. Varda Levy, Bonnie and Cathy Nakamura, Jody Toft, Victor Sirianni, and so many more provided hot dogs and marshmallows in order to make the afternoon complete.

OLYMPIS PLAYGROUND
By Leslie Fambrini

Olympia playground presented a short production of the "Wizard of Oz." The attention on the playground is on the big bike day and cookout to be held at O.L.M. playground. The bicycle riders at Olympia will match wits with the riders of O.L.M. in tests of skill, speed, and accuracy.

PALISADES PARK
By Ron Cortopassi

Palisades Park recently had its swing area resupplied with sand. To assist the worker sin creating an aesthetically pleasing sand box, Mark Barro and Darell Moriano began making castles in the fresh new sand. Others viewing the fun, soon were body deep in sand attempting to employ their own designs. The afternoon was concluded with a sand castle building contest and hopefully a bath for all participants.

Hiram Short and Frank Helm are still the boys to beat in the Carrom Tournament. First and second places are separated by a mere eleven games. The competition gets tougher as the summer progresses.

PANORAMA
By Michael Macia

The big event at Panorama School last week was a bubble gum contest. The winner with the biggest bubble was Tony Petras. Second was Rhondel Petras; third, Steve Matson. Also blowing gigantic bubbles were James, Danny and Stacey Siri, Julie Sebastiani, Frank Barnes, Michelle Paguel, Brigid Becker, John Dormann, Angel Perez, Dave Lopez, Ralph Jackson, Amy Childers, Julie Dickerson, Nelson Rodriguez, and Bonnie and Robert Jefferson.

Panorama's play for the Carnival of Drama was "Charlie Brown playing baseball." Participating were Frank Barnes, Ralph Macia, Dennis Majoroau, and Jim Gallagher.

VISTA GRADE
By Linda Thompson

In the carnival of drama at Serramonte Shopping Center, Vista Grande presented a scene from The Wizard of Oz. Acting in the play were Mildred Wetherbee as Dorothy; Lisa Roston as Scarecrow; Maria Wetherbee as Lion, Marcella Wetherbee as Tinman, and Donna Torres as Good Witch of the North.

Vista Grande playground will begin work on a cartoon which will be shown during cartoon time on Friday afternoon. Using unprocessed film and colored marking pens, participants will draw their ideas on the film.

WESTLAKE PARK
By Daniel Montelongo

A champion has risen in the popular carroms game. Brad Reid defeated Grant Civtanich, who is said to be the San Francisco champion.

WESTLAKE SCHOOL
By Tom McCarthy

Westlake School Mustangers started off their bid for a championship in the high School Softball League with an extra inning affair, defeating Regal Select by a score of 5-4.

Other activities at Westlake School will be barbeque and play days. A strikeout tourney is planned along with the other activities at Westlake School.

Yokels, Scalpers Win in D.C. Play

This summary includes the most recent scores submitted to the Daly City Recreation Division for its High School Slow Pitch Softball League.

The league consists of ten teams, broken down into an Eastern and Western Division. There are five teams in each division. The league will run until August 18.

A championship series will be played by the two first place teams at the conclusion of the league. After the series an All-Star Game will be played between the two divisions.

Games are played at George Washington and Panorama School fields on Mondays and Wednesdays and at Franklin Roosevelt School field on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Program Economy Cuts

Many school districts throughout the country are in financial trouble, and one of the first cuts most of them attempt to make, for some bizarre reason, is their support for the various athletic programs.

They did it in Oakland a few years ago (a total irony, considering all of the black athletic heroes who have emerged from that scene better men and living examples for their down-trodden predecessors), and only a vigorous community drive for funds saved what was left of the athletic program from complete doom. San Francisco Superintendant of Schools, Thomas Shaheen, almost succeeded in sabotaging his city's program, but protests from people with more sense have at least temporarily reduced his machete blade to a pocket pen, and the old and glorious San Francisco AAA league, if not a lot of its intramural program, remains virtually unscathed.

City officials in Philadelphia are also seriously threatening to eliminate all varsity athletics in the schools, even though they admit that elimination of varsity competition would save them only 1.5 million, a trivial consideration when the Philadelphia school system has a deficit of 100 million.

C. C. Johnson Spink, editor of the prestigious Sporting News, recently editorialized about the plight of the Philadelphia high school athletic program, and following are excerpts from his editorial:

"High schools represent the very foundation of our country's sports development process. Philadelphia schools have produced such stars as Wilt Chamberlain, Le Roy Kelly, Guy Rodgers, Herb Adderly and Earl Monroe. In the last two years alone, 196 Philadelphia high school graduates were awarded collage athletic scholarships.

"For inner-core schools especially, the abandonment of sports could have serious consequences.

" 'A STUDY OF DROPOUTS has shown that athletics is the one thread that kids hang onto to remain in school,' said Stanley W. Peffle, director of physical and health education in the Philadelphia system. 'When we talk about such problems as crime and drug abuse, statistics show that the incidence is extremely low among kids who take part in sports. Kids involved in something constructive don't tend to do things destructive.'

"Student athletes spoke up strongly against the proposed cutback. One boy said, 'If it wasn't for sports, I would do nothing, maybe fool around the corners. It gave me another chance in the 10th grade. I was almost caught by the police. I went into sports. It has kept me from becoming a hoodlum.'

"Paul Ward, basketball coach at Overbrook High School, Chamberlain's alma mater, said, 'I don't blame the school board. They're in a bind. But a decision like this could cost us more money in the long run. Now the kids' interests after school will turn to drugs and gangs.'

"Sports offer an avenue of escape from the ghetto and Peffle said it would be 'tragic' to cut off the only chance some youngsters have of going to college . . .

"John Chaney, basketball coach at Philadelphia's Gratz High School, said, 'Some kids' lives could be snuffed out by something like this. There are so many of our kids . . . hardship cases . . . who have nothing more in the world.

" 'I'm afraid this will be the trend in many big urban areas. Cut this out, cut that out, cut out athletics, cut out education. They're just cutting off the noses of the kids.

" 'If you're not going to spend money on youth, where are you going to spend it?' "

ASIDE FROM THE FACT that it probably cost the Giants a few games, we were almost glad to note Willie Mays' relative failure as a defensive first baseman. Not that we have anything against Mays. How can anybody have anything against one of the greatest center fielders who ever lived? And that's the point, one that we've made here once or twice in the past. Mays is a great center fielder. And that's why our back-handed joy at Willie's problems there. It perhaps proved, finally, a contention we've been making for years.

First base, played properly (and what other way is there to play it in The Biggies?), is a difficult position to play, and should never be played by great center fielders except in emergencies (granted, McCovey being out is always an emergency, but the Giants did have a qualified first sacker in rookie Ed Goodson, who certainly could have hit as well as Mays did when Willie was going through his big batting slump at the initial base), nor by right fielders who legs have gone. Furthermore, it takes more than JUST a great athlete. It takes thinking and experience and certain learned skills peculiar to the job.

If it makes Mays feel any better, one of the greatest right fielders who ever lived has been having his problems as a first baseman recently, we hear. That would be Henry Aaron, whose error, we just note, cost the Braves a game last night, and who is playing the position because Orlando Cepeda is injured, and because Hank is having leg problems.

Mays as a first baseman brings up another interesting point. Willie often played the bag like he didn't know even the most basic rudiments of first base play.

For instance, he didn't seem to know what to do on cut-off plays to the plate. He several times crossed his legs rather than shifting them properly on throws to either side of the bag, on one occasion costing Tito Fuentes an error that may have been Mays', letting two runs in, and nearly costing the game. But tell us please, who would have been presumtuous enough to volunteer to TEACH the great Willie Mays how to play a position on the diamond? And would Mays, who has been directing giant outfield play for years, been humble enough to graciously accept such tutoring?

In retrospect, the rumors which used to crop up each spring, when Mays was in his prime, about switching him to shortstop, are scarey. What would he have done at that even more complex and important position? Looking good fooling around in infield practice is far different from performing capably under game conditions. We have little doubt that Mays, given a few years, would have mastered the position and possibly even been great there (although Mantle couldn't cut it as a shortstop when that was his regular position) but what, in the meantime, would playing such a demanding position have done to his nerves and his records? And would he still have been around in 1971 to help the giants to just one more pennant?

SPEAKING OF AGING, GREAT players, why so much press silence about Maury Wills? While we realize that 40 is the magic age in baseball, Wills will be 39 come World Series time, and that ain't so far away from 40, especially when one has been playing that demanding position we were talking about.

Especially when one played it for so long in the bush leagues (remember, Wills didn't play a full season in the majors until he was 27).

Yet, the last time we saw Wills he was playing shortstop as well as he ever did, if not better (the Pirates tried to respect his age and make him a third baseman when he was 34, but he didn't think he was ready for that, and he was right), and hitting .290, four points above his lifetime batting average.

Of course, his base stealing has slowed down this year, but he stole 28 last year. When Mays was 38, he stole 12 bases.

PERHAPS THIS NEXT ITEM belongs on the fashion or social pages, but it's one which concerns us, and which should certainly concern Woman's Lib.

We recently attended our first dog show, the Golden Gate Kennel Club show at the Cow Palace, and made a personal discovery which was confirmed, unofficially, by breeders and trainers who wish to remain annonymous should the all-powerful, monopolistic, apparently despotic American Kennel Club (AKC) hear of their transgressions and banish them from the show rings of the country. Female dogs, or excuse the expression, bitches, are second class citizens in the show ring.

For example, we witness a Siberian Husky contest which included three females and one male, and even to our unpracticed eyes, the male seemed clearly to be the inferior dog. "That's right, he is," said a breeder, "but I bet he'll win. He'd have to be, excuse the expression, a real 'dog' to lose.

The breeder was right. The male won. As we later learned, the males will always win against females, unless one gets an unusually liberal judge or there is a female so striking that the judge might have bad dreams should he not choose her.

TAG ENDS: People, including this writer, continue to moan that Juan Marichal just isn't having a good year. Not for Juan, maybe, but 99 per cent of the major league pitchers have never had as good a year.

Consider that at All-Star break he had 10 wins, was second in the league in innings pitched, complete games, shutouts, and eighth in ERA . . . An even more startling pitcher statistic. Vida Blue has allowed an average of just 5.6 hits per game.

Search Permit Mixup Frees Drug Seller

A San Francisco man who pleaded guilty to possessing dangerous drugs for sale has been freed of the charge by the District Court of Appeal.

The defendant, George V. Potter, 27, was sentenced to three months in county jail in 1970 after more than 500 seconal capsules were found in his locker at the South San Francisco warehouse where he was employed. He was allowed to remain free on bail, however, pending appeal.

The appellate court ruled that South San Francisco police had no right to inspect the locker without a search warrant, even though it was unlocked and they had been told by a company official that he had seen the drugs in the locker. The court cited the case of People vs. McGrew, which held that it was unlawful for police to open a piece of air freight without a search warrant, even though they had been informed by an airline employe, who had lawfully opened the package, that it contained contraband.

The court also ruled out the state's contention that Potter could have had no reasonable expectation of privacy under the circumstances. The decision said:

"Potter, even though he may have anticipated that representatives of the employer would look in his locker for such purposes as to search for missing uniforms, should not be held to expect, and thus implied consent to, the employers inviting a police officer to come and find contraband."

Sues Over Gun Wound

A nine year old South San Francisco boy injured last November when a pistol discharged while being handled by a neighbor is suing the City of San Francisco for $500,000 in connection with the incident.

The suit, filed by lawyer John L. Brennan on behalf of Edward Stephenson of 642 Mayfair Avenue, South San Francisco, says the gun had been removed from the unlocked car of San Francisco policeman William F. Johnston. The car was parked in front of Johnston's home at 311 West Orange Avenue.

According to the suit, Stephenson was accidentally shot by Anthony Hobson, 15, at Hobson's South San Francisco home. Stephenson suffered a shattered jawbone, causing paralysis and head and neck injuries, the suit said.

The suit said a San Francisco ordinance requires that policemen carry their revolvers even when off duty.

No-Fail Grade Plan Considered for Canada College This Fall

The San Mateo Junior College District Board of Trustees is considering the use of an experimental "no-fail" grading system at Canada College, Redwood City, for the fall semester.

If adopted by the board, the system would do away with "F" grades completely, and would use the following grades: "A" (four grade points per unit); "B" (three grade points); "C" (two grade points); "D" (one grade point); "CR" (satisfactory achievement of course objectives); "W" (withdrawal from course prior to the end of the 15th week of the semester) and, "NC" (no credit).

The last three grades would not be considered in determining a grade point average.

According to the proposal prepared by Canada's Dean of Students, William Walsh, a student could repeat any course in which he has received a final grade below "C." When the student completes the repeated course, the student may then petition the registrar to remove the units attempted, units completed and grade points for the previous course from the cumulative totals on his permanent record.

In addition, a student who fails to earn passing grades in 70 per cent of the units attempted during a given semester will be placed on probation and urged to work more closely with his counselor during succeeding semesters.

A student on probation who fails to earn passing grades in 70 per cent of the units attempted during any succeeding semester will then be dismissed.

The trustees, meeting at the College of San Mateo Wednesday night, voiced great interest in the program. However, Board President Mrs. Eleanore Nettle said she had some reservations about the potential success of such a system. She said she wanted information from other districts which have used the system.

It was also noted that the district's other two campuses, CSM and Skyline College, are also working towards the use of the "no-fail" setup.

Skyline President Phil Garlington told the board members that, "There is a tremendous trend towards the no-fail philosophy throughout the country."

Some of the reasons for considering such a decision (which would be a one-year experiment subject to review at the end of each semester) are:

—To discourage the common practice of signing up for a large number of courses and then, as the students realized in which courses they were doing poorly, withdraw from them.

—To reduce the punitive aspect of present standards.

—To encourage students to make mature commitments in the process of course selection.

One of the most telling arguments against the use of the no-fail system, according to Walsh's summary, is that it might increase the dismissal rate.

Trustee Francis Pearson said he wants to be assured that implementation of the program would not injure any student's academic career.

The trustees decided to hold over any decision on the matter until their August 4 meeting.

Mrs. Nettle Is New President of JC Board

Eleanore D. Nettle of San Mateo will serve as 1971-72 president of the San Mateo Junior College District Board of Trustees.

Mrs. Nettle, a member of the board since 1956 and re-elected for a new four-year term in April, was chosen by her follow trustees to succeed Robert A. Tarver, Burlingame attorney, in the top post.

Carl E. Ward, retired San Mateo banker who also was re-elected in the spring balloting, was named board clerk, and newly elected James R. Tormey Jr., San Mateo attorney, was selected as trustee representative to the San Mateo County Committee on School District Organization.

The two re-elected trustees joined Tormey in taking the oath of office from Municipal Court Judge Frank Piombo at a recent meeting at College of San Mateo.

Youth Burned in Explosion

A 16-year-old San Brunan was burned in a gasoline explosion in a neighbor's garage Thursday.

Mori J. Benueniste of 235 Merced Drive suffered first, second and third degree burns of the right side of his body, San Bruno firemen said. He was taken to Kaiser Hospital, South San Francisco.

The Millbrae Spur Bill Now a Law

Senator Arlen Gregorio's bill reserving valuable land for park and open space purposes in the City of Millbrae was recently signed into law by Governor Ronald Reagan.

The San Mateo Democrat's measure allows land conveyed to the city by the state in 1969 for street and highway purposes to be used for parks and open space areas as well. Assemblyman Leo Ryan (D-Daly City) carried the original Millbrae Spur legislation two years ago and assisted Gregorio's bill in the Assembly this year, the Senator said.

"Parks and open space are vital to the well-being of every community," Gregorio said. "Now that this measure has become law, the people of Millbrae can proceed with bringing their plans into reality." He said that plans recently approved by the City Planning Commission call for the 48 acre swath of former highway right-of-way to be developed as a greenbelt and trail system running north-south through the heart of Millbrae.

Pacifican Is Stabbed

A 30-year-old Pacifica man was reported in guarded condition at Mary's Help Hospital after being stabbed by an unitentified assailant Friday.

The victim, Barry McVeigh, suffered five puncture wounds in the back and two lacerations of the left hand, according to Pacifica Police patrolman Robert Morris, the investigating officer.

McVeigh said he was with his wife Anna Marie and another man in a car when he was stabbed, Morris said.

It was 2:40 a.m. when the wounded man knocked at the door at 2010 Palmetto and asked the ocupants to call police.

Morris said details were slim in the case.

"We were just lucky to get that much information and what the man looked like," Morris said.

The suspect is described as 5-10, 170 pounds with brown hair.

No weapon was found at the scene.

Pacifica Police put out an all-points bulletin for a late model car reportedly involved. McVeigh said that his wife and the suspect were in the vehicle.

DELAY MEETING

So that Pacifica P. B. & R. Commissioners might attend the Bay Area Park and Recreation Commissioners' Council Quarterly Dinner Meeting today the next regular P. B. & R. Commission meeting, will be July 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room, Sharp Park Library.

UNIT PRICING WILL MAKE YOUR SHOPPING EASIER AT SAFEWAY

Starting Now!

We are putting the finishing touches on our new Unit Pricing Program. Starting this week, all Safeway stores in this area will start this new program by marking hundreds and hundreds of products with "Unit Pricing" tags similar to the ones illustrated below. In addition to showing our low discount prices, the shelf tags will carry new comparison information to help you make buying decisions best suited to your needs. Sometimes it's very difficult to determine the best buy from a group of items. This program gives you available information showing the "Price per Ounce," "Price per Quart," or other unit comparison that best fits the group of products. For instance, the "Price per Ounce" will be shown on tags for all sizes and brands of canned peaches, while the "Price per Quart" will be shown for all canned juice items. Of course, in making decisions as to which items are best for you to buy, you'll want to keep in mind taste, eating and appearance differences, and the purchase amounts best suited to your family's needs.

6 OZ.
KEL RICE KRISPIES
.32

EQUALS 4.7¢ PER OUNCE
13 OZ.
KEL RICE KRISPIES
1.61

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS!
Compare the "Price per Ounce" in a 6-oz. package (top tag) of Rice Krispies with the "Price per Ounce" in a 13-oz. package (second tag). In the 6-oz. package it costs 5.4 cents per ounce while the same cereal in the 13-oz. package costs 4.7 cents per ounce!.

The Unit Pricing Program being announced today is the refined product of extensive testing by Safeway. Our company began experiments in September of 1969 to work out the kind of program which would be most useful to our customers. Throughout many months of trial and improvement, we have tested customer reactions to different ways of doing this job. Results of our Study, which have included the assistance of a professional independent research team, have resulted in the plan you will be able to use starting this week.

Incidentally, our customers will recognize that forms of unit pricing have been used for many years in all of our stores. On fresh meats, for example, we have long shown the "per pound" and "total for package" price on each label.

REMEMBER:
The "UNIT PRICE" is not the only thing to be considered in selecting the best buy for your family.

Consider Quality
Keep in mind the taste, eating and appearance differences. Think of how you will use the product.

Consider Quantity
If there's too much in a large package to be used within a reasonable time, a smaller package may be a better buy for you, even when the large size costs less "per ounce" or "per quart."

Vince Licata And Staff In Restaurant Action

With their summer vacations being over, Vince Licata and his crew have returned and Vince's Italian and Sea Foods restaurant in San Mateo has re-opened for business. Dapper Vince, who is also known as Woodside's "gentleman farmer," must have enjoyed his brief rest. He's all smiles — greeting patrons and attending to the many minute details of operating a successful restaurant. . . . You really should take advantage of the special package tour to Lake Tahoe's beautiful King's Castle. Daily buses leave San Francisco Greyhound Depot headed for the North shore spa, with just $13 per person being the round-trip fare. Upon arrival, guests are presented with a total of $11 in bonus refunds. . . . The original Nick's, at Rockaway Beach in Pacifica, is the "flagship" of the restaurant empire, owned and operated by genial Nick Gust. For years Nick's has been one of the most frequented restaurants on the coastside. Now sharing that distinction is The Moonraker and The Papagayo Room, more recent creations of the popular Gust family.

Iron Horse Summer Festival

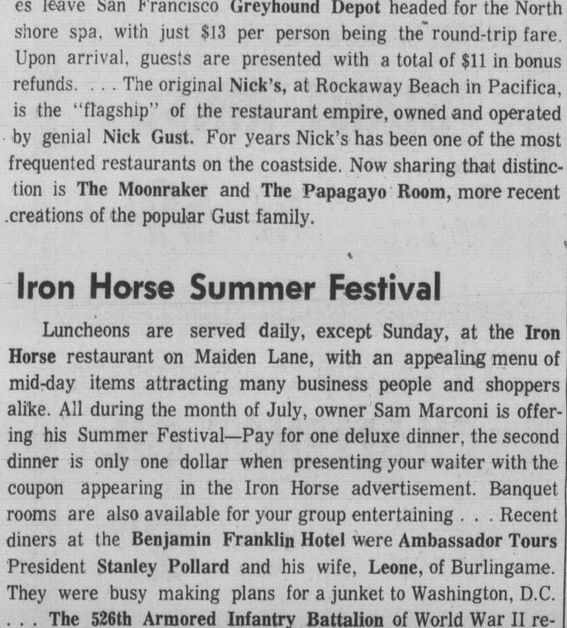
Luncheons are served daily, except Sunday, at the Iron Horse restaurant on Maiden Lane, with an appealing menu of mid-day items attracting many business people and shoppers alike. All during the month of July, owner Sam Marconi is offering his Summer Festival—Pay for one deluxe dinner, the second dinner is only one dollar when presenting your waiter with the coupon appearing in the Iron Horse advertisement. Banquet rooms are also available for your group entertaining . . . Recent diners at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel were Ambassador Tours President Stanley Pollard and his wife, Leone, of Burlingame. They were busy making plans for a junket to Washington, D.C. . . . The 526th Armored Infantry Battalion of World War II recently held a reunion in the Gold Ballroom at the San Francisco Hilton Inn. This famous group guarded General Omar Bradley's personal staff during his invasion of Germany . . . The Costa Brava restaurant, located on Bayshore Boulevard in San Francisco, has a "Penthouse" view of the San Francisco skyline. A great menu of food, with house specialties such as steaks, lobster and canneloni, is served amidst plush Spanish decor.



DON DIANDA, host-owner of Doros, is adding something new to his Holiday award-winning menu starting Monday. Complete dinners will be served at a reasonable price.

Rex Sole Exposition Special

The Exposition Fish Grotto at Fisherman's Wharf has many menu attractions, but one of your Bright Lighter's favorites is Rex Sole. Listed under "Specialties of the House," this plate consists of local white flat fish, served boneless with the Grotto's famous Meuniere Sauce and French fried potatoes . . . The luxurious cocktail lounge at Stickney's of San Mateo is a favorite relaxing spot for many of the employees in the 520 Building. Executives, as well as secretaries pop in for an after-work cocktail and a bit of pianobar music. . . . Fresh Mushroom Stew in the Black Kettle is the "House Specialty" at the Lord Fletcher Inn, Atherton, which serves only authethentic English food and drinks. Managed by Andy Ardito, the elegant Inn is a twin to a similar location in Palm Springs, which is a popular haven for celebrities. . . . Back at Clancy's after a few days off is the vivacious organist Margie Brandon, who presides at Clancy's pianobar Wednesday through Sunday nights. Margie, San Francisco's "Miss Happiness," spent her vacation days in the Northwest visiting her mother.

Finocchio's Entertainers

Finocchio's cast of entertainers is a lineup of the world's foremost female impersonators, who perform in four lavish revues nightly. Each show (beginning at 9 p.m. nightly) includes a dazzling display of comedy, songs and dancing, with the gorgeous costumes, designed by Alberto, almost stealing the show. The star-studded cast is headed by Lucian, the "Male Sophie Tucker." Other headliners include Laverne Cummings, Holly White, Ty Lindstrom, Carroll Wallace, Elton Paris and 395-pounder Russel Reed. An added attraction is comedienne Jackie Phillips. Also featured is a chorus line, The Eve-Ettes, with choreography by Joel Noble. This talent revue naturally attracts other greats in show business; autograph hunters seem to always have a field day at Finocchio's. Among the appreciative audiences recently were Bob Hope, who viewed two shows with his daughter and son-in-law, and jazz great Lionel Hampton.

JACK HUNTER, chef at the beautiful Shirt Tail restaurant in Palo Alto, should wear a feather in his high chef's hat. If you're weary of plain baked potatoes, try his superb Anna Potatoes. They're sliced, then cooked in herbs, butter and broth. Senational, say diners, who praise his culinary finesse.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

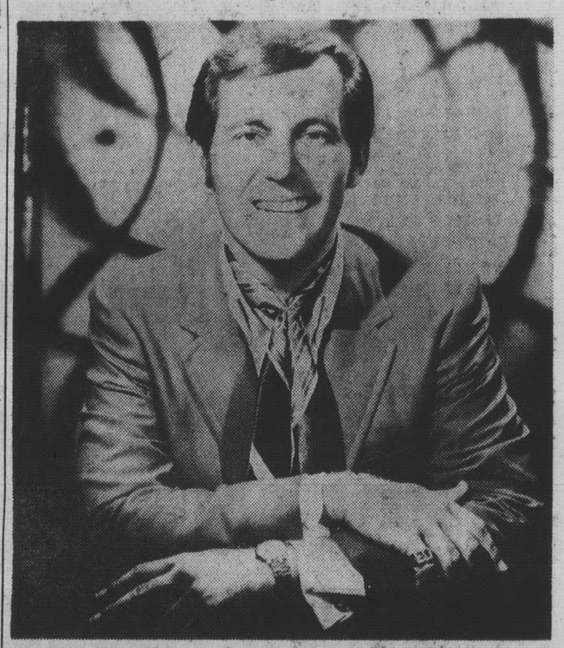
Rodeway Inn Features Entertainment Nitely

Six nights a week, entertainment reigns supreme at South San Francisco's Rodeway Inn. General Manager Ted Downes has signed a new group, Mundo's People, which will be performing Monday nights only. Lori English and the Future Trend set the mood in the Golden Rooster Lounge from 9 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturday. The luxurious skyrise motor-hotel also features gourmet dining in the Encore Room, in addition to having banquet, meeting and convention facilities . . . Enrico Romano, owner of Romano's Italian restaurant in Pacifica's Rockaway Beach, is an expert when it comes to making pizzas — whether they be small, medium or large. For years he has been perfecting his recipes . . . Phil Lehr spared no expense in decorating the V.I.P. Room of his Steakery as San Francisco's most splendiferous meeting place for the top brass of Blue Chip firms. The room, happily, is available to the public as well, so if you're planning a lunch or dinner meeting for 25 to 30 persons — give Phil a call.



ED DIAMOND, who spans a century of songs at the piano, is appearing nightly, Monday through Friday, in the lounge at Airport Marine Hotel, Burlingame. Coming direct from a record engagement of 42 weeks at the Tropicana in Las Vegas, this crooner-type singer with notable "88" talent and a flair for comedy projects with an air of excitement and induces lounge patrons to sing along.

Entertainment The Nevada Way

A money-saving way to visit Lake Tahoe is by making arrangements through Park Avenue Tours. Regardless of whether you're taking a bus or driving your own car, Park Avenue Tours enables you to receive a variety of refunds. Overnight guests are assured of excellent accommodations at reasonable rates, and bonuses are even paid for the daily eight-hour Turnarounds. If you're headed for Nevada and interested in saving money, contact one of the Bay Area's four Park Avenue Tours offices . . . With all the raves about the prime ribs and steaks served at Scotty Campbell's, we hasten to clue you that all red meat served at this award-winning Redwood City restaurant comes under the heading of "Prime Beef." These are mighty big words in the restaurant business, and Scotty Campbell's rates tops in this highly competitive field. . . . No business slump at Lew Lehr's Steak House, in San Francisco's Marina District, where Lew just recorded his biggest weekend of the year. Looks like more Bay Area diners have discovered Lew's complete steak dinners priced from just $5 — plus that convenient free parking nearby.

Pixley "Restaurant Informer"

This plug is long overdue: Norman Pixley, the dapper gent who parlays clothing combinations at his men's store (39 East Fourth Avenue, San Mateo) has added a barber shop and manicurist to his business. Located on the mezzanine level, the facility is called Glenn's Hair Grooming For Men. The fellows who trim your locks are masters of the trade. If you're searching for the "In" look, look in at Glenn's. Norm Pixley is a great booster for Bright Lights' restaurants, and he can tell you at the drop of an "on-account-payment" just where to dine. . . . Taste tip: Filet of Sole Miguel, as served at A. Sabella's at Fisherman's Wharf Stuffed with Spinach Florentine and topped with a delicate white cheese sauce, this delightful dish, which is named after one of owner Lucien Sabella's children, is a great favorite here . . . After being closed for two weeks of vacation, The Shadows of San Mateo is back in the swing. Restaurateur Dave Rasmussen, who is also a local auto mogul as well as a rancher, has returned to the Peninsula dining scene after spending a few days overseeing his large spread in Eastern Oregon.

Hillsdale Inn New Ownership

The Hillsdale Inn, San Mateo, is now under new ownership (more about this in next Friday's column), and a complete new entertainment policy now prevails. New General Manager Les Sasada will showcase live entertainment six nights a week, Tuesdays through Saturdays, and has signed Gina and The Tracks of Time to head up the showbill in the Sportsman's Lounge. . . . Castillio's Mexican Kitchen is one of nine restaurants located in Hillsdale's Farmers Market. Typically Mexican dishes are featured, including six different and distinct combination plates.

Jefferson Negotiator Is Cleared

Jefferson Elementary Classroom Teachers Association teacher negotiator, Denis O'Leary has won an arbitration award.

William Eaton, of the American Arbitration Association ruled the Jefferson Elementary School District had unjustly instituted dismissal proceedings as a reprisal for O'Leary's Jefferson Classroom Teachers Association organizational activities.

Eaton stated, "The arbitrator regrets very sincerely that the District did not choose to appear to present its case in this dispute. The concept of due process of law does not thrive in ex parte hearings. But neither would justice be done were a man with a legitimate grievance to be denied a hearing of that grievance simply because his antagonist refuses to appear and participate. Hence the arbitrator is bound by the provisions of Article V 9 of the Agreement between the parties to render a decision.

On the basis of the evidence presented in the record of this dispute it is impossible to explain the actions of the District against Denis O'Leary, as anything other than a classic form of reprisal against a vigorous and effective organization leader."

The arbitration award stated the Board through its agents was in violation of the memorandum of agreement Article 32 and directed the board of trustees to withdraw the charges brought against O'Leary.

Creation of Urban Design Agency Urged

South San Francisco City Planner Dan Pass is recommending the planning commission adopt a resolution making that body the official urban design agency of the city.

Planning Commissioners are scheduled to act on the proposal, which would require council approval, at their regular meeting Monday night.

With urban design authority, the commissioners would be responsible for the review of proposed major public and private development projects. They would submit reports of "urban design impact" to the councilman.

Pass said that without this authority, the planning commission will be substantially hampered in its effort to promote orderly growth and development stability of the city.

As the official planning agency, the commissioners already are responsible for implementing existing planning and zoning laws to bring about long-range orderly growth and development.

But Pass says the commission can no longer promote long-range, comprehensive and general growth without urban design jurisdiction, over the city's sphere of influence as well as the city itself.

Anyone Talk Portuguese?

Mrs. Esther Logan, who operates the Senior Citizen Informatiin and Referral Service in Pacifica under the auspices of the San Mateo County and the City of Pacifica, needs a volunteer who can speak Portuguese.

An elderly couple needs a translator who can go with them once a month to the doctor to assist them in translating to the doctor and the doctor talking with them, Mrs. Logan said.

The couple lives in the Linda Mar area and sees a physician in that area.

Anyone available two or three hours a month who can speak Portuguese should contact Mrs. Logan at the Senior Citizen Referral and Information Service on Wednesday or Friday mornings or to contact Ginny Silva in the Park, Beach and Recreation Department office. Both can be contacted at the City Hall phone number.

Scholarship to Steven Roche

Steven L. Roche of Daly City, a junior at the University of California at Berkeley, has been awarded a 1971 Volkswagen Domestic Scholarship.

Sponsored and jointly financed by Volkswagen of America and the country's 14 regional VW dealerships, the scholarships were presented to 15 students in 13 states this year.
